Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurAward-winning and international bestselling author Lynda La Plante brings back her popular series character, London Detective Chief Inspector Anna Travis of the Murder Squad, to work a seventh case in Blood Line. La Plante, who bestselling crime fiction author Karin Slaughter (Blindsided) says practically invented the thriller, is best known for her Prime Suspect novels, the basis for the wildly popular BBC series starring Helen Mirren and a recent U.S. incarnation featuring Maria Bello. In Blood Line, Anna takes on a high profile missing person investigation which might well develop into the hunt for a murderer, especially when a pool of blood is discovered but no body. Crime fiction fans who appreciate a good cop and a good murderespecially Ian Rankin, Ruth Rendell, Elizabeth George, Peter Robinson, and Val McDermid readerswill be eagerly following the trail of evidence every step of the way. Revue de

Well-crafted. . . . Several credible suspects emerge, and, in a nice twist, the identity of the victim comes into question. A lively plot and a number of satisfying revelations. . . . (Publishers Weekly)It contains some nice twists, and the character of Travis continues to evolve and grow in complexity. (Booklist)Fun, fearsome and fiercely independent. (Sunday Telegraph)Lynda La Plante practically invented the thriller. (Karin Slaughter, author of Fallen and Broken)Well-crafted. . . . A lively plot and a number of satisfying revelations. . . .
