Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurGraham Melton was a normal fifteen-year-old until he met Charlotte Marshall over a can of warm lager at his best-friends party in 1985. It was love at first sight, and teenage life was never going to be the same again. Two decades later, Graham is a single father trying to protect his son from the rigours of the modern world. Everything has changed, and the innocence has long gone. What happened in those years inbetween? How did something so perfect go so tragically wrong? In a heart-warming and humorous tale of love, laughter and tears, Mark Gartside weaves a poignant story of ones man struggle to bring up his son whilst learning to love and smile all over again.Revue de presse'Gartside s warm, thoughtful, emotionally honest treatment of the process of becoming a man, especially handling responsibility for others in the face of loss, is a promising debut from a writer not afraid to show his
